

Dairy production is a part of the solution

More than 200 dairy people meet at Nordic Dairy Congress in Malmö to discuss the UN sustainability goals. They strongly believe, that milk and dairy production can contribute to solve malnutrition in a sustainable food model. The congress is open for dairy people from all over the world.

Delivering on the UN Sustainable Development Goals and fixing the climate crisis is the center of attention around the world and the debate is challenging the dairy industry to perform even better. However, the dairy sector remains part of the solution if we are to feed a growing world population – making sure that people around the world get the valuable and essential nutrients that dairy products and dairy ingredients provide.

The 45th Nordic Dairy Congress brings together prominent speakers from around the world to present a programme designed with an international outlook and the ambition to appeal to participants with different competences, positions and challenges. The speakers will present solutions and views that should serve as inspiration for the dairies and related industries to improve their financial bottom line as well as their bottom line supporting the UN Sustainable Development Goals. Furthermore, we hope the presentations will spark the smart brains of the scientists at universities and other knowledge institutions to help the industry come up with sustainable solutions of tomorrow.

The Congress is international, and the entire program will be in English. The Nordic Dairy Technology Council has been extended with active participation from Society of
